Conflict Minerals (as that term is defined under the final rules of Section 1502 of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act) include cassiterite, columbite-tantalite, wolframite, and gold, and their derivatives, which are limited to tin, tungsten, tantalum and gold.

The reporting Division has undertaken a review of its potential use of Conflict Minerals, including an appropriate rationalized supply chain review. Based on the review of appropriate personnel at this Division, as indicated by signature below, and whom I (we) have determined to have the requisite knowledge and expertise to provide informed responses to the following statements and conclusions, I (we) have determined that:

1. Conflict Minerals are not necessary to the functionality or production of product(s) manufactured or contracted to be manufactured by this Division.
2. Conflict Minerals are or may be necessary to the functionality or production of product(s) manufactured or contracted to be manufactured by this location, as further identified below.
3. Conflict Minerals in the form of recycled or scrap material are or may be necessary to the functionality or production of product(s) manufactured or contracted to be manufactured by this location, as further identified below.
